

In a world of possibilities

Add new dimension to your team with forensic accounting.

Fraud and litigation cases often make front-page news. They also make forensic accounting one of the top accounting specializations for both firms and companies.

By supporting your team's growth of forensic accounting knowledge, you can help detect deficient internal controls and investigate — or help avoid — accounting-related crime.

Our certificate programs cover the forensic accountants' professional responsibility, the legal system, planning and preparing a forensic engagement, gathering information, discovery, reporting and providing expert testimony.

Showcase your skills.

After completing the education (and passing the exam, if applicable), your staff will earn CPE credits and be awarded a certificate in the form of a digital badge they can display online.

Pathway to completing the CFF credential

Your staff who complete the self-study online education and pass the exams for the Core Forensic Accounting Certificate and the Specialized Forensic Accounting Certificate will fulfill the education and exam requirements of the CFF credential. That saves 16 CPE hours vs. not using these programs. (The CFF Credential has a 75-hour education requirement.)

Note: Earning both the Core and Specialized Forensic Accounting Certificates does not indicate credentialization in financial forensics. Your staff must still meet 1,000-hour experience and other credential requirements to earn the CFF credential. To learn more about the CFF credential, visit aicpa.org/CFF.
